ePortfolio Solution for your Members/Learners

An electronic portfolio or ePortfolio is an extension of the paper based-portfolio, bringing with it the obvious benefit of making a portfolio of evidence portable and shareable anywhere that you have Internet access. It is the new generation of the three ring binder or the artists folio of work.

In fact, an ePortfolio has a much broader scope as an online collection of reflections and digital Artefacts (such as documents, images, blogs, resumé's, multimedia, hyperlinks and contact information). Users can use an ePortfolio to demonstrate their learning, skills and development and record their achievements over time to a selected audience.

Mahara ePortfolio is made available to you within our eLearning Incubator. Your participants or members receive a secure login and password and can then proceed to enter their personal details, contact details and any other personal or professional information into their Profile. The next step is to create a Resume into which they enter their education, qualifications, work/professional/creative history, interests and goals. Mahara has been created for every kind of computer user, novice to expert. It is so simple and so intuitive.

Once the profile and resume are complete, the user may create any number of 'Views' to which they can add documents, images, video clips, photographs, scans of artwork simply by uploading them and dragging and dropping them into place. These views can be made available to the public or to a select audience. Your members' or learners' work is protected - only they can decide who has access to it.
